

Contents

List of figures	xii
List of tables	xiv
Acknowledgements	xvii
Summaries of the chapters	xviii
Introduction: Visual citizenship: communicating political opinions and emotions on social media	1
0.1 Concepts	4
0.2 Methods	6
0.3 Empirical insights	9
PART 1
Concepts	15
1 Everyday political expression as a citizenship practice	17
1.1 Broad definitions of citizenship, civic engagement and political participation	18
1.1.1 Dutiful versus self-actualising citizenship	18
1.1.2 Civic engagement	18
1.1.3 Political participation	19
1.2 Idealising political participation over (online) civic engagement	21
1.2.1 Civic engagement as latent participation	21
1.2.2 Three criticisms of the gateway model	21
1.3 Listening as an underestimated activity	23
1.4 Idealising rational deliberation and consensus	24
1.4.1 The anachronistic bourgeois public sphere	24

1.4.2	Ideal rational versus fragmented and messy citizenship practices	26
1.4.3	Deliberation versus agonism, and the conflictual nature of modern pluralism	27
1.5	Idealising a certain kind of citizen	28
1.5.1	Nostalgia for sophisticated literacy in the olden days	28
1.5.2	Undermining power relations and inequalities among citizens	29
2	Citizenship, social media and visual cultures	33
2.1	The visual turn and a new semiotic order	33
2.2	Technical advances and visual platform vernaculars	35
2.3	Citizens' political expression in visual social media posts	38
3	Personalised citizenship	44
3.1	The blurring of private and public spheres	44
3.2	Privatised civic engagement on ubiquitous social media	45
3.3	Political self-expression embedded in personal experiences	46
3.4	Image-based content that personalises political self-expression	48
3.4.1	Political selfies by ordinary people	48
3.4.2	Pictures of eye-witnessed events	49
4	Visual creativity and civic engagement	54
4.1	Popular culture, creativity and citizenship	54
4.2	Heuristic devices in citizens' political social media posts	57
4.2.1	Semiotic familiarity: the power of conventional metaphors	58
4.2.2	Semiotic innovation: the power of play and creative metaphors	62
4.2.2.1	Creative parodies of conventional metaphors	63
4.2.2.2	Creative metaphors	63
4.2.3	The power of play and the danger of cognitive biases	65
5	Affective citizenship	71
5.1	The affective turn in political expression	71
5.1.1	Emotion and affect: two different types of situational entanglement	72

5.1.2	Emotion and reason	73
5.1.3	The cultural practice of emotion	74
5.1.4	The social glue in a political context	75
5.2	Affective economies on social media	76
5.3	Visual content and emotions	79
5.3.1	Cognitive approaches to images and emotions	79
5.3.2	Iconic images and the circulation of emotions	80
5.3.3	Emotions and citizens' visual imagery on social media	82
PART 2
Methods		89
6	Challenges to the validity of visual studies	91
6.1	Challenges in content analysis	92
6.1.1	Quantitative and qualitative content analyses	92
6.1.2	Manifest and latent content	93
6.2	Challenges in discourse analysis	95
6.2.1	The analysis of discourse structures and patterns	96
6.2.2	Qualitative discourse analysis	97
6.2.3	Interviews and reverse image searches as complementary methods	99
7	Systemic functional approaches to visual content	103
7.1	The three functions of language	103
7.2	O'Toole's functional framework for paintings	105
7.3	Kress and van Leeuwen's three functions of visual communication	107
7.3.1	The representational function	107
7.3.1.1	Narrative structures	107
7.3.1.2	Conceptual structures	114
7.3.2	The interpersonal function	120
7.3.2.1	Interactivity	120
7.3.2.2	Modality: colour, perspective, background, representation, depth, illumination and brightness	125
7.3.3	The compositional function	128
7.3.3.1	Information value: left-right, top-bottom and centre-margin	128
7.3.3.2	Saliency	136
7.3.3.3	Framing	137

7.4	Two challenges in analysing visual resources	138
7.4.1	Social semiotics and the “grammar” of visual content	138
7.4.2	Units of analysis in visual content	140
8	Methodological standards for quantitative content analysis of social media posts	147
8.1	A rich variety of existing research designs	147
8.2	Data collection and selection	150
8.3	Data contextualisation	151
8.4	The size of a valid sample	153
8.5	Intercoder and intracoder reliability and the size of the testing sample	156
9	Categories for visual content analysis	163
9.1	Representational variables: connection with the research question, standard and specific topics, frames	163
9.1.1	Preliminary variable: the connection with the research question	163
9.1.2	Standard variables: standard topics	165
9.1.3	Contextualised variables: specific genres and topics	167
9.1.4	Latent variables: frames based on manifest or latent content	175
9.2	Interpersonal variables	181
9.3	Compositional variables	187
10	Appraisal in text–image social media content	194
10.1	Emotion, opinion and the issue of observability	194
10.2	Thematised emotions and opinions in text and image	200
10.2.1	Thematised attitude: affect, judgement and appreciation	201
10.2.2	Literal and figurative thematised emotions: major sets versus basic emotions	204
10.2.3	Literal and figurative opinions: inscribed or evoked judgement	209
10.3	Signal-like emotions and opinions in text	213
10.4	Supported emotions and opinions in text and image	217
10.4.1	Content patterns and related methodological questions	218
10.4.2	Text–image rhetoric: attitude in visual arguments	222
10.4.3	Specific emotions in supported attitude	228

PART 3
Empirical insights	235
11 The Brexit vote and its aftermath: quantitative results	237
11.1 The connection with Brexit and tagging practices	238
11.2 A threefold concentration of topics	241
11.3 An unexpected variety of visual genres	246
11.4 Self-expression as the main social relation	249
11.5 Stance and the issue of polarisation	252
12 Opinions and emotions in text–image relations	260
12.1 Ten patterns of attitude in multimodal social media posts	260
12.2 Five types of appraisers in the verbal elements	264
12.3 Eight types of verbal attitude in multimodal social media posts	267
12.3.1 Attitude in common-sense sayings, statements or proverbs	269
12.3.2 Indirect speech and endorsement of external voices	269
12.3.3 Anchorage of the visual content	270
12.3.3.1 Attitude through anchorage, no attitude in the visual content	272
12.3.3.2 No attitude through anchorage, attitude in the visual content	273
12.3.3.3 Attitude through both anchorage and in the visual content	274
12.3.3.4 No attitude neither through anchorage nor in the visual content	275
12.3.4 Diegetic relay of attitude	276
12.3.5 Verbal alignment and disalignment with attitudinal visual content	276
12.3.5.1 Verbal alignment or disalignment with thematised emotions in the visual content	276
12.3.5.2 Verbal alignment or disalignment with thematised judgements in the visual content	276
12.3.5.3 Verbal alignment or disalignment with supported attitude in the visual content	277
12.3.6 Minimal attitudinal lexis	277
12.3.6.1 Minimal affect lexis	277
12.3.6.2 Minimal judgement lexis	277

12.3.6.3	Minimal lexis of supported attitude	277
12.3.7	Attitude in general statements	278
12.3.7.1	Emotion-related general statements	278
12.3.7.2	Judgement-related general statements	278
12.3.7.3	General statements of supported attitude	278
12.3.8	Attitude in personal narratives	278
12.3.8.1	Thematised emotions in personal narratives	279
12.3.8.2	Thematised judgements in personal narratives	279
12.3.8.3	Supported attitude in personal narratives	279
12.4	Multimodal patterns and attitude in visual content	280
12.4.1	Convergence or divergence in the types of attitude	280
12.4.2	Literal or figurative nature of the verbal and visual content	280
12.4.3	Attitude and types of visual participants and processes	281
12.5	Contracting and expanding alternative voices: two patterns of engagement	281
13	Metaphoric judgement and creativity in the Brexit context	286
13.1	Inferring multimodal metaphors	287
13.2	Emotion-related metaphors	289
13.3	Judgement-related metaphors in multimodal content	293
13.3.1	Quantitative findings: the prevalence of four metaphors	293
13.3.2	Scenarios and moral foundations in metaphors	295
13.3.2.1	Judgement-related metaphors without markers of moral foundations	299
13.3.2.2	Judgement-related metaphors with markers of moral foundations	300
13.4	Metaphoric creativity in image-based social media posts	306
13.4.1	Level zero: no metaphoric creativity at the conceptual, image or formulation level	309
13.4.2	Level one: non-metaphoric creativity at the formulation level	310
13.4.3	Level two: metaphoric creativity at the formulation level	311

13.4.4 Level three: double metaphoric creativity at the formulation level	311
13.4.5 Level four: metaphoric creativity at the conceptual level and image-schema creativity	312
13.5 Creativity in mundane experiences	314
Index	319