

Table of Contents

Table of Cases xiii

1. Outline	1
1. Idea and Programme	1
2. European Society	3
3. Transformation	6
4. European Hegelianism and Anti-Schmittianism	9
2. Concepts	15
1. The Old Jus Publicum Europaeum	15
A. A Response to the Thirty Years' War	16
B. The Droit Public de l'Europe	18
C. Schmitt's Jus Publicum Europaeum	21
2. New Concepts for the New Law	23
A. The First Threshold Phase	24
B. Hallstein's Community of Law	26
C. Mosler's European Law	30
D. The Union and the union	32
3. Public Law without Statehood	36
A. A Dogma and a Breakthrough	36
B. The Transformation of Sovereignty	41
C. Schmitt's The Concept of the Political	42
D. Public versus Private Law	45
4. Administrative Law without a State	48
A. On the Ambivalence of Europeanization	48
B. Cassese's All-Powerful Law	51
C. Ipsen's Supreme Regulatory Agency	53
D. Democratic Administrative Law	56
5. Constitutional Law without a Constitutional Text	58
A. The Second Threshold Phase	58
B. The Long March of the Constitutionalist Approach	61
C. On the Purview of Primacy	67
6. Transformative Constitutionalism	68
A. Democratic Society Instead of Ever Closer Union	68
B. The Emergence of a New Concept	70
C. Latin American Innovations	73
D. European Transformative Constitutionalism	78

3. Principles	85
1. Prolegomena	85
A. The Promise	86
B. Values and Principles	88
C. The European Constitutional Core	90
D. From a Society of Private Individuals to a Society of Citizens	93
2. Principles and Identity Politics	96
A. A Delicate Topic	96
B. Some Identity Theory	99
C. European and National Identity	103
D. The Pluralism of Principles	111
3. The Rule of Law	113
A. Trust as a Vanishing Point	113
B. Legality of Union Action	116
C. Effectiveness in National Law	119
D. Strengthening Weak Statehood	120
4. The Arduous Path to European Democracy	125
A. The Debates of the First Period	125
B. The Maastricht Judgment of the Second Senate	128
C. Homogeneity and Heller's Europe	133
5. A Democracy of Many Mediations	135
A. In Whose Name?	136
B. Democratic Representation	140
C. Further Democratic Transformation	153
6. Transformative Constitutionalism	157
A. Difficult, But Necessary	157
B. Putting a Focus on Systemic Deficiencies	162
C. Instruments	164
4. Courts	169
1. A New Actor	169
A. An Unexpected Development	171
B. Multiple Modernities	173
C. The Lever for Transformation	175
D. On the Acquisition of Power	177
2. Europeanizing Constitutional Adjudication	186
A. Europeanizing the Courts' Mandates	187
B. Europeanizing the Sources	190
C. Europeanizing through Multilevel Cooperation	192
3. How the CJEU and the ECtHR Forged European Society	194
A. The Original Mandate	195
B. Building Unity: The CJEU	198
C. Human Rights Juridification: The ECtHR	207
D. The Power of European Precedent	213

4. Common but Differentiated Responsibility	217
A. The CJEU and ECtHR's Complementarity	218
B. Growing Forests and Falling Trees	221
C. Closing Ranks to Counteract a Common Threat	227
5. Democratic Courts	229
A. The Mandate for Structural Transformation	229
B. Democratic Selection Procedures	234
C. In Whose Name?	238
6. Transformative Constitutionalism	242
A. New Responses to Old Challenges	242
B. The Requirements Set Out by the ECtHR	248
C. The CJEU's Mobilization	251
5. Scholarship	257
1. The Gestalt of European Jurisprudence	257
A. Agency	257
B. Schmitt and We	259
C. The Problem of Hegemony	263
D. Scholarly Identities	266
2. An Autonomous Voice of Reason	269
A. Autonomy and Democracy	269
B. Comparative Law with Eduard Gans	272
C. Comparative Law in European Society	274
3. Roles	277
A. Helping Out Legal Practice	277
B. Critique	278
C. Theory	279
D. Doctrine	282
4. Fighting Fire with Fire	286
A. Criminal State Organs	286
B. Criminal Liability	289
C. Solange	294
6. This Book's Quintessence with Marius Ivaškevičius	297
Author Index	299
Subject Index	311